

WE NOMINATE

Arthur Francis Buddington, one of the great geologists of his time and an enhusiastic Princetonian for some 36 years, who twice in the past two years has been singled out for awards reserved for distinctive research, Last week in Minneapolis, Munn, the 65-year old the teacher-scientist received the Roebling Medal of the Mineralogical Society of America for his outstanding contributions in mineralogy. Late in 1954, the year marking the 100th anniversity of the birth of Princeton University's Department of Geology, he became the only full-time university professor in this country to hold the highest honor conferred by the Geological Society of America, the Penrose Medal, which is presented annually in recognition of achievements leading to a "decided advance in science and geology."

Closely associated with the U.S. Geological Survey since he spent summers with its Alaskan Branch in the early 1920's, Buddington, a native of Wilmington, Del., is currently concerned with mapping and analyzing an extensive airborne magnetic survey of mineral resources, a project linked with the government's efforts to map the entire country from the standpoint of economic and scientific interests. This particular venture stems from the 11 years he served as principal geologist with the U.S. Survey in charge of the further development of iron ore in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania and recalls his role in phoneering in the use of airborne magnetic equipment in discovering iron ore prospects in this hemisphere.

Buddington, specializing in the chemistry of rocks, the geology of the Adirondack Mountains and the nature and arrangement of the concentric shells in the outer 25 miles of earth, remains active in a dozen or more professional societies. A frequent contributor to scientific publications and associate editor of the American Journal of Science, he is a former president of the Mineralogical Society of America and has been vice-president of the Geological Society of America as well as a section head of the American Geophysical Union. Among his other, continuing affiliations are the American Philosophical Society, Sigma XI, the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A member of the Class of 1912 at Brown University, which three decades later was to award him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science, Buddington took his doctorate at Princeton in 1916 and during World War I divided his military service between the Army Signal Corps and Chemical Warfare Service. He subsequently taught at Brown and spent a year with Carnegie Geophysical Laboratory as petrologist before joining the Princeton Faculty in 1920. Named the University's Curator of Petrology in 1921 and advanced to a full professorship in 1932, he "chaired" Princeton's Deartment of Geology for 14 years, finally relinquishing the post in 1950 to devote more time to the development of fundamental research programs.

For helping geology attain its present-day status as a well-integrated and powerful field of knowledge; for adapting the long-range view of the geological sciences, a hindsight extending back some 2,500,000 millenia, to the needs of the present and future; for strengthening this community's cherished research tradition; be is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

REPUBLICANS CUT CAKE

G.O.P. Takes All. Cut from the same pattern that baked the mammoth Republican cake, Princeton wrote the 1956 elections into the history book as a solid Republican victory. Only three of the community's 13 districts gave a Democrat a majority, as the two incumbents of the party lost to their G.O.P. opponents at the borough council level.

As he had elsewhere throughout the nation, President Eisenhower topped his Princeton ticket by a wide margin. In the borough, he polled 2,686 votes—nearly 400 more than the next highest Republican—with his margin virtually identical in the township. Approximately 87% of the voters in each municipality went to the polls, but there were few delays and the machines made complete tabulation possible less than an hour after the 8 p.m. closing.

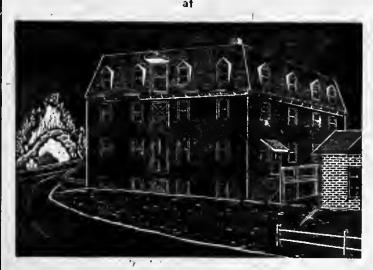

In the borough, last year's fourvote loser, Prof. Alfred E. Sorenson, won a new term by topping the four-man race with 2,199 votes. Selected with him for the first time was Maurice A. Mather, who drew 2,125.

The defeated incumbents had each served a three-year term. Richard W. Colman, Jr. received 1,929 votes and Raymond F. Male,

Princeton Township endorsed the move of its Republican-dominated governing body, which had appointed the three G.O.P. candidates to serve out unexpired terms until election day. Successful in their bids to serve three-year terms were James G. Campbell

(2,065 votes) and John S. Mount (2,030.) They won by approximately 600 over Democrats Ansley J. Coale (1,468) and William B. Bretnall (1,412.)

Joining them on the committee for a two-year term (left vacant by former mayor John H. Wallace, Jr.) is Charles A. Hurford, who won a three-way race with 2,063 votes. He topped Democrat William G. Whatley (988) and the only independent and only woman office-seeker, Mrs. Ruth Kleinberg (463).

The position of tax collector also went to a township Republican, Walter B. Foster, Jr. winning with 2,126 votes to 1,361 for Simeon Moss. Unopposed for assessor, Republican Stuart Robson polled 2,380. (For district totals in all local races, see boxes, pages 1 and 2.)

Raffles Approved. By a margin of 203 votes, borough residents reversed their 1954 stand on raffles, which were made legal as a result of Tuesday's balloting. Approval was registered, 1,598 to 1,395 with only districts one and eight dissenting. Church opposition to the referendum had not materialized as it did two years—Continue on Page 2

Princeton contributed to defeat of the two state-wide questions on the ballot. The question of a revised policy on tax assessments lost by some 400 votes in both borough and township, while the matter of increasing the sheriffi's term from three to five years was rejected by respective margins of 500 and nearly 700.

Princetonian Willie Hayes wasn't even running for political office Tuesday, but he suddenly picked up a lot of support. And it's a mighty lucky thing he wasn't a candidate because he won't have any time for office-holding for a long while to come.

At 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Mrs.

At 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Mrs. Beulah Hayes, 33, proudly presented her 31-year-old husband with a baby boy at Princeton Hospital. By 8:58 a.m., a second boy was born and, at 9:31 a.m., Mr. Hayes learned the staggering news that he was the father of three boys—only the second set of triplets to be born here in a decade.

The three newborn young-

The three newborn youngsters, who were greeted by a one-year-old slster, Sheile, and whose father works for Delco
Battery in New Brunswick, were brought into the world by Dr. Raymond Stone, attending physician, and Dr. Nathaniel Greenfield, pediatrician. Considering their premature weight of three pounds each, their condition was called
"good," indicating an early trip to their home on the Lincoln
Highway, Route 27, R.D.,
Princeton.

The last triplets at Princeton Hospital were girls, born January 29, 1948, and their parents were Mr. and Mrs. Victor Larson, then living on Cherry Hill Road.

Washington Road, marking Eisenhower's victory with a pizza pie party, sailed lighted pie boxes out of a second-story window. Several were blown back into an open ground-floor window, setting a couch and nearby wall ablaze before the flames were extinguished.

With a rare assist from the weatherman, who dampened spirits of youngsters only, Princeton experienced one of its "quietest" (and wettest) Hallowe'ens ... "Mischief Night,' an evening earlier, hardly lived up to its name, police officers were delighted to report. . Less pleased this week were Borough Councilmen after noting that the county's new "recreation report" lists Marquand Park as a "proposed" recreation area. . They thought they had a pretty well-developed park area there already!. Council also is curious to know creation area. . . They thought they had a pretty well-developed park area there already!. . . Council also is curious to know when the state intends to install the Harrison-Hamilton traffic light, since the grapevine says It's coming but the highway bigwigs have yet to confirm. . . Speculation continued this week regarding the University's plan to erect a single family dwelling near the Graduate College, believed to be a likely new home for President Harold W. Dodds, who retires next June. . . It seemed like safer speculation than guessing who will occupy "Prospect," the president's current home on campus.

Concluding that bowling must be almost as closely pursued in the nation's sports pages as it is in the nation's bowling alleys. Town Topics responds to the conclusion this week by presenting the first in a weekly series of Bowling Notes, designed to keep Princetonians up-to-date on individual and team activities in all local leagues (page 20) . . . Another Weekly feature of the Town Topics, one-year-old-plus Question of the Week (page 13), pays a quick re-visit to the Suez area, prompted obviously by a

After a hiatus of nearly four weeks, Mc-Carter Theatre will re-open at 8 Carter Theatre will re-open at 8 tonight for the world premiere of a new, Broadway-bound comedy, "Everybody Loves Me." The Princeton run will continue with an 8:30 p.m. performance Friday and a pair of Saturday showings, the regular 2:30 "thrift matinee" and another 8:30 offering.

(At mid-week, as Town Topics went to press, there was evidence to support the belief that Princetonians were more concerned with the general election than with theatre plans for the coming weekend. Tickets for "Everybody" were moving slower than anticipated, though a post-election surge was confidently expected. Reservations for all four performances are being handled through (PR 1-5515).

Veteran producer Max Gordon has assembled a wealth of talent for the product of a new play-wighting team Mania and Playwrighting team, Mannie Manheim and Arthur Marx (son of Grou-cho), which is scheduled for an early December Broadway opening. Everybody in the large cast for "Everybody" has a theatrical biography that makes impressive reading, Miss Texas, for example, has appeared in "Seven Lively Arts," "It Takes Two," "The Girl From Nantucket" and, most recently, "Pipe Dream." Mr. Harrington, a 25-year stage veteran, has devoted his talents to musicals, including "Call Me Madam," as well as dramas, including "Counsellor at Law," while young Mr. Janis has already scored suc-"Counsellor at Law," while young Mr. Janis has already scored successes in "Dark of the Moon," "The Next Half Hour" and "The Brass Ring," for which he won the Theatre 'World Award for "most outstanding performance."

In signing Messrs. Carson and Sinclair for the play's most difficult chores, the producer had excellent reasons. "Everybody" deals with the family relationships of a reigning. FOOTLIGHT FOOTNOTES

Critics Sleep, Too. "The Sleeping Prince," which premiered at McCarter Theatre in mid-October and received a fair share of yawns in Town Topics' review, opened at the Coronet last Thursday and received similar treatment from the New York critics. Most of the Broadway aisle-sitters discovered they were sleeping right along with the "Prince," placing the blame on Terence Rattigan's script rather than the acting of Michael Redgrave and Barbara Rel Coddes Bel Geddes.

WELL - ROUNDED TALENT: Her name is Temple Texas (well, now it is anyhow) and she hails from Arkansas, but her appeal is universal. Princeton theatergoers will find out why when they see her this week-end in "Everybody Loves Me" at McCarter Theatre.

At the time of its Princeton tryout, Town Topics wondered "why the Cinderella story must be re-worked quite so often" and felt that "first-rate Rattigan ought to be demanded." It was noted that Miss Bel Geddes seemed "uncertain now and then that she was putting her hours on stage to putting her hours on stage to worthwhile use" and that Mr. Red-grave performed "rather stiffly." In summation, the play was labeled a "none-too-fresh Cinderella cake."

Herewith a sampling of comments by the Broadway critics, indicative of their wholesale bore-

Glee Club to Sing. A joint annual foothall concert will be given at Alexander Hall Friday night at 8:30 by the Princeton and Harvard Universities Glee Clubs. Tickets at $1 can be bought at the University Store, and, on the evening of the performance, at Alexander Hall.

The program will include music by composers such as Bach, Berlioz, Schubert, Mendelssohn and Sullivan, and, in the tradition of fall concerts, there will be a good number of rousing football songs. The Princeton Glee Club is conducted by Carl Weinrich.

Chamber Music Program Planned. The Fine Arts Quartet will play string quartets by Bartok, Haydn and Seymour Shifrin at the first Procter Hall concert of the season Sunday afternoon at 3:15. The concert is sponsored by the Friends of Music and is open to the public without charge.

The quartet is comprised of

The quartet is comprised of Leonard Sorkin and Abram Loft, violinists; Irving Ilmer, violist; and George Sopkin, 'cellist, Heard for eight years of consecutive coast-to-coast radio broadcasts, the quartet has also made many recordings and has served as Quartet-in-Residence at Northwestern University. It has appeared in concerts throughout this country and Canada.

Musical Amateurs Meet. Handel's "Samson" will be the program for the next meeting of the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs Sunday afternoon at 5:15 at Mlss Fine's School. The soloists will be Virginia Switten, soprano; Barbara Hilbish, contralto; Harry Powers, tenor, and Fadlou She-

The orchestra will be conducted by professor J. Merrill Knapp of the department of music at the University. All who wish to attend are invited. Supper reserva-tions may be made by calling Mrs. MacKenty Bryan at 1-0453 between 2 and 4:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday.

Symphony Sets Program. Music by two composers of the 18th century, who were both at the court of Frederick the Great, will be played at the Princeton Symphony Orchestra concert a week from Saturday at 8:30 in the High School Auditorium, Nicholas Har-sanyi will conduct.

The two composers are Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach, second son of Johann Sebastian, and Johann Joachim Quantz who wrote some 300 concertos for one or two flutes, many of them dedicated to Frederick, C.P.E. Bach's concerto for orchestra in D major was orlginally scored for four viols con-certante, but will be played in the arrangement made by Maximilian Steinberg in 1909 for flute, two oboes, English horn, bassoon, French horn and strings. Quantz will be represented by his flute concerte in G major.

The contemporary American composer, Kent Kennan's "Night Soliloquy" will be performed, and the closing work on the program will be Mendelssohn's symphony in C major, written first as a string quartet, when the composer was 14 years old. Information about series tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Henry A. Barton, 25 Springdale Road, Tel. 1-0442. Single tickets for this concert will be on sale at the University Store starting Saturday.

• Kerr in the Trib: "In all that follows, alas, "The Sleeping Prince" is never awakened. It is simply allowed to lie there."

• Chapman in the News: "Gra-ustarkian is the only adjective for this comic-opera comedy, I guess, much as I wish there were a newer one; but, since 'The Sleeping Prince' is absolutely honorable in its intentions toward its oudience, and is charmingly played by a cast which includes the marvelous Cathleen Nesbitt, it is entertaining if you'd like an easy journey into the world of make-believe."

- Donnelly in the World-Telegram: "Mr. Redgrave never seems comfortable in his role, and this feeling of unease is communicated to the spectator . . . Miss Bell Geddes is as fresh and charming a creature as one could hope to see, but her basic style is a kind of lovable realism, and her current vehicle calls for something higher and more extravagant in tone, and a lot less literal."
- McClain in the Journal-American: "A handsome produc-tion and the combined efforts of a brilliant cast are not enough, in this reveiwer's opinion, to make a very exciting evening of Terence Rattigan's "The Sleeping Prince'.

 It is a woefully slow starter, to begin with, and even when the gears mesh and the wheels start turning it doesn't take us on a particularly emotional excursion."

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Solid Gold Cadillac (Nov. 8-10) is a solid silver screen vehicle that doesn't even need color (until its clever closing sequence) to keep rolling merrily along, so the talented efforts of screenplay writer Abe Burrows, producer Fred Kohlmar and director Richard Quine are well protected. The story, a George S. Kaufman-Howard Teichmann product that Max Gordon brought successfully to the New York stage several seasons back, tells of the simple way that simple folks, with their few shares of stock, can take care of the big, bad manipulators who would steal from the stockholders —as long as the simpletons have Miss Holliday on their side. Paul Douglas and Fred Clark add uppreciably to the entertainment, as does Neva Patterson, seen recent-ly at McCarter Theatre in "Dou-ble in Hearts" ble in Hearts."

The Power and the Prize (Nov. 11-13) gives a bright newcomer, Elizabeth Mueller, a fat chance to expose her varied talents in comexpose her varied talents in company with a host of accomplished performers, Robert Taylor, Burl Ives, Charles Coburn, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Mary Astor, and Miss Mueller holds her own very well. As might be guessed the well. As might be guessed, the film is a mixture of "Executive Suite" and "Patterns," with all kinds of remantic overtones, and, as might be guessed, it's done in CinemaScope without color. Surprisingly, some visual impact is lost due to the strictly black-and-white production, but not enough to keep it from being reasonably entertaining fare. To one's sur-prise. Mr. Taylor-after lo these many years—is still "the young and hrilliant protege." Tea and Sympathy (Nov. 14-17) comes to the screen, this time CinemaScope with color, from a successful Broadway run, with stars Debor (no kin) retained for the Hollywood version. It's not an easy story to tell and manage to get it by censors-dealing as it does with an accused homo-sexual who is saved from shame by a loving acute water shortages if this dense development continues because of the inability of the land to produce sufficient water supplies. There are certain areas in the watershed where a density of eighty families per ten acres is possible under existing regulations, while the ground water supply is barely adequate for three families."

Referring to the watershed—e 300 - square - mile area covering parts of five central New Jersey counties—as "an island between two large steamrollers of development," Dr. Wilkens said public recreational facilities in the area are below standard, protection of existing development appears inadequate and "the loss or inefficient exploitation of natural reservoirs is imminent in many parts of the area."

"There is a tremendous need for thinking at the regional level," the director stressed. The lawbooks have endorsed such regional endeavors for years, but only recently, with the formation of such organizations as the watershed association, have planners begun to take vitally needed action. Dr. Wilkens vowed that his workers would continue to "irritate ideas" with ensuing reports on their long-range research.

Borough PTA Presents Speaker. "Problems facing public education today" has been chosen by the Borough PTA as its theme for the year. John L. Childs, professor emeritus, Teachers College, Columbia University, will speak on the subject at a meeting on Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Nassau Street School:

The author and co-author of

The author and co-author of many educational books including "Education and Morals" and "Education in an Age of Anxiety," Professor Childs has been active in educational YMCA work in Peking in association with the Princeton unit there. He has received numerous honors for his work in the field. The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Birth List. Nine boys and four girls were born to Princeton area parents last week at Princeton Hospital

P.M.I. Building Ready Soon. January 1 has been set as the date when the new Princeton Municipal Improvement building at 32-36 Nassau Street will be ready for occupancy. The four-story structure will be open for inspection by the first of next month.

The 11,708 square foot building is completely air-conditioned and equipped with an automatic elevator. The ground floor space of 3,000 square feet will be used as a shop, and the other three floors will be subdivided into office space as required by tenants. Offstreet parking space is available for the tenants.

The buildings designers, Kenneth Kassler and Associates of Princeton, have given it a colonial exterior motif in keeping with other Palmer Square structures. The builder is the Matthews Construction Company.

Radeliff Dean Will Speak. Mrs. Kathleen O. Elliott, Associate Dean of Instruction at Radeliffe College, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Radeliffe Club of Princeton next Thursday. The meeting will be held at 8:15 p.m., at the home of Mrs. L. B. Holland, 79 Deerpath.

Mrs. Cowen graduated from Smith In 1920 and since then has been active in class, club and a lumnae association affairs. Transportation to the meeting may be obtained by calling Mrs. Clifford Lamar (1-1808-W.)

New Standpipe Planned. A 500,000-gallon standpipe will be erected in Princeton Research Park by next October. The new water tower will be built by the Princeton Water Company. It will double present water storage facilities and, working in balance with the existing standpipe on John Street, will equalize the system and augment the water supply to the entire Princeton community.

Research Park will give the water company a piece of land in its 70-acre plot north of the Shopping Center for the standpipe, Details of location are presently be-

NOTHING'S QUIET ON EASTERN FRONT: While store owner Merrill Zinder checks papers on his Nassau Street newstand, where sales are fast these days due to world crises, customers Roland Gunther (left) and Joseph Danbury start reading the news at once. They boast widely divergent views regarding the Suez situation, as Indicated by their answers to Question of the Week (below), and they enjoyed a heated sidewalk debate — In true American tradition — after revealing their sentiments for the inquiring reporter. (Town Topics Photo by Ed Hein)

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think Great Britain and France were justified in their move to protect the Suez Canal?

Location: Nassau Street.

Roland Gunther, Princeton Junction, engineer: No — because it was not a move to protect. Ostensibly, it was such a move, but not in reality. My theory is that they prompted the Israelis to attack so they could plough in there!

Joseph Oanbury, 178 Linden Lane, maintenance man for ASCOP: I've had my idea ever since this thing started. Britain and France are going to go just so far, just far enough to get the Suez back to normal. They don't want an all-out war, and they're not taking a chance of it getting out of hand. They know just how far to go; I guess you might call it an educational venture. And I feel they're justified, and also that the Russians won't be able to take advantage of the situation.

Merrill Zinder, 36 Stanley Avenue, co-owner of Zinder's store: I think it's about time something has been done to check Nasser, but it's a shame it had to be by force. For a number of years, Egypt has been going against UN pollcies — through killing, skirmishes and recently by not allowing use of Suez — in an effort to eliminate Israel's existence. Then, no adequate action or solution was tried by Britain, France or Israel when Nasser seized the canal. I don't think they want or expect a full-scale war, and I do think they are trying to find a peaceful settlement. Also, I think it's protective—and justified.

Mrs. T. R. Williams, 22 Edward Place, housewife: I don't think the British and French were justified in moving in. I know the situation was bad all around before, but the French and British are taking a terrible risk that war on a larger scale may break out. I think the United Nations are the only ones who can solve the conflict.

Hawley Waterman, Hun School math teacher and head football coach: No, because I want to see the UN work. However, I can see their point of view, too. They look at the Suez as their lifeline and, naturally, think of it differently than we do. I'd like to see us stick with Britain and France at all times, but this time following their move is not okay.

Mrs. Joanne Visser, visiting here from Newport, R. I., housewife: My viewpoint is formed soley from what I read In the papers and hear on the radio—a complete layman's view—but I feel it may be difficult to judge from an American vlewpoint if the British and French were justified in their action. I have lived abroad for many years and am leaving in January for Spain to join my husband, who is a captain in the armed forces. From a purely civilian viewpoint, I feel that this country might have done the same thing, if it had been in Britain's or France's position

Tony Klitus, Trenton, bartender at the Peacock Alley: They were justified in their efforts to regain control of the Suez—more or less—because Nasser and his fellow Egyptians broke their treaty agreements. But I definitely don't approve of their means to the desired ends.

Donald B. Jensen, New Brunswick, employee at ETS: I think their action was justified, but I don't condone it. This may seem ambiguous, but, while I do feel that they should not have moved in, I also have a certain sympathy for them. Since they are in there fighting already, they'd better knock Nasser off fast and see to it that another Egyptian government is chosen, and they'd better do a quick job so we won't find ourselves in a terrible war. I also think the British put the Israelis up to their attack.

SEMINAR IN CONSTRUCTION: Six small scholars study the theory and practice of blackboard installation at Littlebrook School. Later, they will write about what they've seen and learned for language class, draw pictures of it for art, and discuss it in social studies. In the front row are Greg Allen and Patty Cornell. Second row, front to back: John Rossi, Barbara Witler, Steven Vernon and Randy York. See below for further details of first school days at Littlebrook.

ORDERLY CHAOS

Scholars and Carpenters. Out nt Littlebrook School these days there's an air of hustling and productive chaos. Less than two weeks ago, the Less than two weeks ago, the new school, still unfinished, was invaded by the last platoons of children who will make it their home. About 150 came from Valley Road School on Friday, October 19 and about 400 kindergarteners converged on the school the following Tuesday. Roady to the following Tuesday. Ready to greet them were the principal, Dr. William D. Purcell, the teachers — and workmen still at their jobs, like the tile setter who laid the last tile on a class-room floor while the children waited outside in the hall.

Corridors may be stacked with cartons and the blackboards may not all be there, but Littlebrook has a definite atmosphere of learning. The earnest musician filing away on his violin or the quiet classroom intent on number work—there's no evidence that construction impedes instruction.

In fact, Dr. Purcell has drafted workmen to be teachers. Whenever there's an interesting building job in process, the children are taken to see it, and the workmen are happy to explain the inmen are happy to explain the in-tricacies of wiring so that a fourth grader can understand. One technician took apart a whole heater-ventilator and explained each part to a cluster of second graders while he put the thing back together again,

After they have watched a project, the children draw it, or write about it or discuss it for social studies. If the process has a danger element—like the recent installation of heavy blackboards that could do considerable dam-age to a small foot—the pupils are moved out of the class-room until the work is completed.

Because the children have been encouraged to watch the work closely, they are very grown-up when Dr. Purcell says "Stay away" For example, not a single child approached some forbidden heavy-duty machinery that was parked near the school for several days. "Their curlosity had been satisfied in other ways," said Dr. Purcell, "It's more fun to watch an electrician put in a to watch an electrician put in a plug.

Bell Problems. Probably the electrician meant more to Littlebrook than any other workman because he brought both heat and light. The autumn was warm enough so that heat wasn't missenough so that heat wasn't missed too much, hut no electricity meant no class bells. A child would walk through the halls ringing a big cowbell that belonged to Mrs. Gustave Eisenmann, superintendent of Township Schools. Later, they used an old British air-rald warden's bell that

Dr. Purcell contributed.

Dr. Purcell contributed, Finally the program bells themselves were connected and ready to ring. The special fire gong had not yet heen installed and the children were told that, if they heard the program bells ring when it wasn't time, that meant fire drill.

So the very next day when the bells rang before it was time, the entire Littlebrook student body rose and marched outdoors in first-class fire drill formation. Only there wasn't any fire drill; the bells had short-circuited, (When the fire gong itself was hooked up, there was a real drill and everybody was out in a proud one minute, 52 seconds.)

"You have to live in a school to iron things out," says Dr. Purcell. Cooperation between principal's office, classroom and contractor has taken out many a wrinkle already.

Everyone Cooperates, Contractors who ordinarily like to finish a whole job have willingly reversed their work procedures to put first things first. Plumbers in-stalled all the toilets before turn-ing to the sinks. Heating contrac-tors put in the fundamental units, just to get heat in the building and postponed things like thermostats until later.

The children have responded buoyantly to all situations. When there were no blackboards, they brought little ones from home or helped teachers devise easels with newsprint pages mounted on

No bulletin boards? They made them from discarded cartons, or used miles of Scotch tape to used miles of Scotch tape to fasten paper to the cinder block walls. There are, as yet, no bookcases and no storage cupboards, but cartons have been re-designed and in many cases even paint-

Before the cafeteria opened last week, children ate in their rooms and frequently invited the class next door for a lunch picnic.

"You like Littlebrook?" "Sure!" Some of the older children miss the big Valley Road playground and its equpiment, but the young-

"There's a fountain in every room and you can get a drink any time you want to."

(There is also a sink in every room and you can wash your hands any time you want to, but nobody mentioned this. In kindergarten rooms, there is also a toilet.)

Safety Factor. Betty Cox, third grader from Hillside Avenue, likes her new school because it's all nn one floor and you can't fall downstairs. Carla Green, her classmate from 65 Leigh Avenue, thinks the school is cheerful and pretty with its bright yellow corridors and colored class-room walls. "How do you know when we need fuel OIL?"

Even without seeing your tank gauge, we know how much oil you are using-and when we should make our next delivery. This service, which we call our "degree-day" system, practically guarantees that you'll never be caught short; never run out of oil-even in the coldest weather. It's only one of the many special services we offer you-in addition to supplying you with the finest home fuel oil available at low prices.

Servicing you and your heating needs is the part we play in America's progressive oil industry. And there are thousands of other oil companies that serve you, too. Some of them look for oil; others transport it; still others refine it into many useful products-from gasoline and oil to new miracle fibera. But we independent businessmen have one thing in common - we are free to compete with one another. And you benefit.

So call us today-and let us help you have a warm, comfortable winter.

BIG THREE ACTION

Harvard Here Saturday. The word from Cambridge, quoting Athletic Publicity Director Hank Johnson: "Harvard expects to be at full strength this weekend for the first time this season."

The word from Princeton, quoting Charlie Caldwell: "We haven't played a good game against those guys since 1952 and have beaten ourselves in the last two Harvard

If Harvard is not to break Princeton's string of six straight victories and spoil the Tigers' bid for both the Big Three and Ivy titles, the Orange and Black will have to turn out some solld football Saturday afternoon. It is not so much that the Crimson has won in con-vincing fashion every other Saturday and that this weekend is its turn to be a good team; rather, given on the gridiron all the sbility it has on paper, the Cambridge entry could be a pretty strong outfit.

Anticipation of an exciting contest will bring the largest crowd of the season to Palmer Stadium, with a crisp afternoon of autumn aunshine likely to draw close to 40,000. Game time is 1:30.

Visitors Switch Attack. At the start of the 1956 season, Harvard coach Lloyd Jordan found himself with four particularly able backs, none of whom fitted into the number two (blocking back) slot in the single wing. Accordingly, he broke away from that traditional Crimson offense and has turned to the T.

At one point, Horvard began calling it the "A" formation (which Yale used against one of Princeton's unbeaten elevens in a desperate effort to pass the Tig-ers into defeat.) Cappy Cappon, who has scouted Harvard, merely reports laconically: "I don't know what an 'A' formation is they lost their quarterback when he flunked out of college, and they're running and passing out of an unbalanced T."

Freshman Face Harvard

Princeton's impressive freshman football team will go after its fifth victim this season when it entertains Harvard 1960 at 11:30 Saturday mornning on University Field. It will be the last home game of the year for the Tiger Cubs, who face Yale next Saturday at New Haven.

Tailback Dan Sachs, newlyelected captain of Matt Davidson's unbeaten outfit, scored one touchdown and passed for another as the freshmen trima well-regarded Penn team last weekend, 19-7. The first score came when Sachs dropped a fourth-down pass from center, picked it up and threw 28 yards into the hands of wingback Bill McMillan, alone behind the Quaker secondary.

Sachs' substitute, Dick George, skirted end for 12 yards and the second Princeton score, with Sachs racing around the right flank from six yards out early in the third period. The freshmen gained 213 yards on the ground while holding the losers to 23 but lost numerous other scoring op-portunities when they were guilty of eight fumbles.

If the Crimson can muster its top four backs at the same time, it will use small (163-lb.) Matt Botsford at quarter: 178-lb. Walt Stahura and 195-lb. Jim Joslin at the halves; and 215-lb. Tony Gianelly of full. The first three can all pass, Stahura and Joslin run well and Gianelly has for the past two seasons been one of the best fullbacks to face the Tigers.

Botsford missed the Penn game, as did another good Harvard back, Ron Eikenberry, but both are expected to be ready Saturday. It was Joslin who was largely responsible for Harvard's 14-9 triumph here two years ago, while last season he threw the touchdown pass that won for the Crimson in the rain, 7 to 6.

A 55-yard touchdown run on the fourth play of the game was cancelled when Hewes Agnew's trip to the end zone was nullified by an offside penalty. The Tigers then stalled out on the one, recovered a fumble on the Bruin

A Quick Trip To Quality!

$1500 for Trick or Treat

Princeton's youngsters who went UNICEF-ing Instead of Trick-or-Treating brought back $1500—money enough to set up three child guidance centers to care for the physical needs of underprivileged children and their mothers, or money enough to cure 10,000 children of yaws

The figure was about $150 more than 1955 total, and it was achieved in spite of the fact that nobody in the senior class of Princeton High could porticipate because of homework. A total of 163 junior and senior high school students took part in the program.
